part 2 : Reading comprehension

Read the following passage and answer the questions .

Induced aggressiveness is, of course, a common technique, but “ psyched- up” players can be a menace to themselves and others. Injuries are but one consequence. As the desire to win increases in intensity, especially when the players symbolically represent schools, cities, nations, races, religions , or ideologies , considerations of fair play are liable to be lost in the scuffle. In such situations , aggressiveness on the field is often accompanied by violence in the stands , where crowd psychology operates (often in conjunction with alcohol) to reduce normal inhibitions on rowdy behaviour.
